

Getting ready for KINDERGARTEN

It is never too early to start to build a foundation for age-appropriate school readiness skills. In fact, research shows that young children are permeable learners who have the capability to learn many concepts at once. At Big Blue Marble Academy, we use this knowledge to incorporate all early learning domains into each of our curriculum experiences to help build a love of learning that will last a lifetime.

Your Role in Kindergarten Readiness

Starting kindergarten is an important milestone for your child...and you! You can start preparing for this transition now by looking for more ways to increase your child's learning experiences that build school-ready skills. Read our School Ready Checklist for suggested skills.

The BBMA Backpack

To support your child in developing important kindergarten readiness skills, parents of our preschool children are provided with a list of questions to spark good conversations as well as experiences they can do at home. These experiences are relevant to children as they help reinforce the learning in the classroom and build a positive school-to-home connection. Choosing to enroll your child in an early learning environment is another way to help you and your family begin the transition to school. Read more about how Big Blue Marble Academy approaches kindergarten readiness.

Getting Children Ready

We make getting ready for school fun. Our teachers combine a research-based curriculum with engaging instruction that helps to grow curiosity and confidence in our students. Our focus on higher level thinking helps students build early skills that they will carry with them to kindergarten and beyond. And because we create a safe place to learn and grow, our students learn how to problem solve and approach challenges with an "I Can" attitude. We know learning never ends, so our teachers are also provided a wide range of professional development opportunities to continue to enhance their teaching.
